ABOUT US

The European Association of Cognitive Ergonomics (EACE) is a community of academics and applied scientists that promotes the field of cognitive ergonomics. In this tradition, EACE is responsible for supervising the organization of an annual European Conference of Cognitive Ergonomics (ECCE) typically arranged by local researchers in their home cities. The history of EACE and of ECCE is about as old as the discipline of cognitive ergonomics itself. The first ECCE was hosted by the Free University Amsterdam in 1982. All the conferences have all taken place in many locations across Europe.
